

KAE TRAN

Activist / Consultant / Creative / Model

Kae Tran is a freelance multi-disciplinary creative, activist, and model based in Toronto, Canada. She specializes in art direction and branding design but what truly sets her apart from her peers is her unwavering commitment to accessibility, ensuring that every aspect of her works and teachings is not only beautiful but inclusive and empowering. Having personally confronted ableism for most of her life, she learned the importance of self-advocacy and draws from her lived intersectional experiences as a disabled, POC, woman living with an incurable, progressive disease called Muscular Dystrophy.

Kae's empathetic approach and multifaceted skills make her a dynamic and invaluable player in any project or campaign, combining aesthetic brilliance with a strong social influence in authentic disability representation. Kae is ultimately dedicated to being a voice for marginalized and underrepresented communities; forever championing human rights, human-centred design thinking, and destigmatizing disability.
